JetBlue Arrives in Italy: New Boston-Milan Service Takes Off Today

Daily summer-seasonal flight marks JetBlue's first-ever service to Italy and expands Boston's transatlantic reach to nine European destinations

To celebrate the launch, limited one-way fares are available starting at $399 and €449 in core, $649 and €659 in EvenMore and €1799 and $2199 in Mint for Boston–Milan route

BOSTON--(May 11, 2026)-- JetBlue (NASDAQ: JBLU) today launched its new daily summer-seasonal service between Boston Logan International Airport (BOS) and Milan Malpensa Airport (MXP), marking the airline's first-ever service to Italy. The new route expands JetBlue's transatlantic network from Boston and reinforces the airline's position as New England's leading leisure airline, while also strengthening convenient connections for customers traveling across JetBlue's broader network.

With the start of service to Milan, JetBlue now offers customers nine daily nonstop destinations from Boston to Europe during the summer season, complementing existing year-round service to Amsterdam, London-Heathrow and Paris, as well as seasonal flights to Barcelona, Dublin, Edinburgh, London-Gatwick and Madrid. The new route builds on JetBlue's continued investment in Boston, coming just weeks after the airline launched new seasonal service to Barcelona, Spain, and further strengthens Boston's role as a key connecting hub.

"Launching service to Milan marks an exciting milestone for JetBlue and our continued growth in Boston," said Marty St. George, president, JetBlue. "As our first destination in Italy, Milan brings even more reach to our transatlantic network and gives customers, both in New England and across our network, the chance to experience JetBlue's unique service across the Atlantic. All of it is built around exceptional service, thoughtful design and everyday value."

"We are pleased and proud to welcome the new direct JetBlue connection between Boston and Milano Malpensa Airport, the airport chosen by the American carrier for its debut in Italy. This flight further strengthens the intercontinental network of our airport and reinforces Milan's role as an international gateway for Northern Italy," said Aldo Schmid Head of Aviation Business Development, SEA Milan Airports – "JetBlue's arrival at Malpensa represents an important sign of confidence in the Milan market and in the potential of tourism and business traffic between Italy and the United States. Boston, besides being a fascinating city to visit, is a strategic destination rich in economic, cultural, and academic opportunities. This new service will offer passengers greater travel options, along with a high-quality experience and efficient connections to the airline's North American network."

Boston and Milan: Connecting Two World-Class Cities

JetBlue continues to build Boston into a transatlantic gateway, offering customers throughout

New England more ways to reach Europe with competitive fares and a high-quality onboard experience. Following the launch of service from Boston to Madrid and Edinburgh last year, and Barcelona earlier this spring, Milan now becomes the newest addition to JetBlue's European map from Logan.

The Milan route also makes it easier for customers across the U.S. to reach one of Europe's most celebrated cities. Known globally for fashion, design and innovation, Milan offers visitors iconic attractions along with easy access to Lake Como and the Italian Alps.

And for customers starting in Italy, Boston opens the door to destinations across JetBlue's network. As a leading leisure airline in Boston, JetBlue offers extensive service from Logan to popular destinations across Florida, California and the Caribbean; or visitors can stay and experience one of America's most historic cities.

By linking these two cities, both hubs for innovation, education, sports, art and culture, JetBlue is creating new opportunities for customers on both sides of the Atlantic to discover dynamic destinations connected by global influence and local character.

The JetBlue Experience

Flights to Milan operate on JetBlue's A321 aircraft. These aircraft feature JetBlue's Mint® premium experience, with fully lie-flat private suites and restaurant-style small plates curated by acclaimed New York City restaurants.

EvenMore® customers enjoy new benefits such as dedicated overhead bin space, complimentary alcoholic beverages, a premium snack, and complimentary headphones upon request, in addition to the benefits they already know and love including extra legroom, priority security at select airports and early boarding.

The airline's award-winning core experience offers a new level of service to customers who generally fly "coach" but still want a great experience at an attractive fare. Core customers enjoy a world-class experience no matter where they sit with a free selection of brand-name snacks, soft drinks, coffee, tea, beer, wine and liquor and a high-quality complimentary meal from JetBlue's culinary partner, Dig Inn. Customers in core, EvenMore and Mint stay connected throughout the flight with fast, free and unlimited high-speed Fly-Fi and can enjoy a robust selection of inflight entertainment on seatback screens at every seat.¹
